

The Explanation Of The Role Of Literary Discourse On The Rise Of The First Pahlavi

Rasoul Mohammadi¹, Javad Dehghanian²

Received: 11/5/2021

Accepted: 10/1/2022

Abstract

The main question of this paper is to explain the role of the literary institution in the context of power relations and in particular the arrival of Iranian society into the era of Pahlavi rule. In the meantime, based on Ernest Cassirer's comments, the late literary works of the Qajar period until the first Pahlavi era was evaluated. Contrary to the prevailing approaches to text as abstract, neutral, inactive, and merely reflective of a subject or matter, Cassirer believes that texts as a system of signs are, above all, a set of practices that have the capacity to be the position of agency. On this basis, he believes that the mental construction of the new world is still influenced by myths that are produced and reproduced in various ways and with specific purposes. The results obtained and described by these works show that literature in this period, by creating a particular kind of myths and then expanding and diffusing the mythical insights into heroism and nationalist discourse, provided the basis for the emergence of the First Pahlavi rule.

Keywords: The role of discourse in literature, the contexts and emergence of the Savior in literature, Pahlavi rule and Persian literature, the adaptation of Cassirer's theories and contemporary literature.

¹ - Corresponding Author: Graduate M.A Persian Language and Literature, Shiraz University, Shiraz, Iran; Email: rasoulmohammadi80@yahoo.com; ORCID <https://orcid.org/0009-0008-3740-3862>

² - Associate Professor of Persian Language and Literature, Shiraz University, Shiraz, Iran; ORCID <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-6904-2274> mirjavad@shirazu.sc.ir

Extended Abstract

1. Introduction

In criticism and new theories, one of the important issues is the function of literature. This issue has always been raised among thinkers and intellectual and cultural trends and is considered a part of the problem and problematic of the philosophy of literature. Among the contemporary thinkers, Cassirer, along with Gramsci and Althusser, have addressed the issue of the importance and function of art and literature. In Cassirer's intellectual system, text and culture are not basically neutral categories without agency. From such a perspective, Cassirer establishes a close bond between text and power. Cassirer refers to myths and the conditions in which myths appear. In the book Myth of the State, he raises the issue of how totalitarianism and its examples and representatives, like Hitler, have emerged in the modern world demanding rationality, and what is the role of literature in this? Now, according to Cassirer's theory, we have examined the position of the literary community (text and author) as a reference group in the emergence and evolution of Iranian society at the end of the Qajar period. In fact, this article seeks to show and explain the role of the institution of literature in the emergence of the first Pahlavi.

Page | 30

2. Literature Review

In the field of Persian literature, there is a large volume of books, treatises and articles and other scattered writings that, despite their value and importance, have followed a single pattern. These works often deal with the quality and place of a phenomenon or a concept in literary texts, and there are not many works that have reached an understanding of the text that observes the participation of the text in power equations and relationships. Based on Ernst Cassirer's opinions, the following article tries to independently show the influence and role of Persian literature in the rise of Pahlavi rule.

3. Methodology

This article is done with the method of qualitative content analysis and based on library sources. First, Ernst Cassirer's theory, which observes the relationship between the text and the concept of power, has been explained. Then, the cases that have played a role in the emergence and establishment of Pahlavi rule in the poetry and prose works of the late Qajar period have been examined and analyzed according to the article's hypothesis.

4. Results

The results of this article show that literature in the late Qajar period, in its various fields, by creating the myth of the savior and then expanding and spreading its various dimensions, has provided the ground for the emergence of Pahlavi rule with known and known coordinates. Malek osh-Sho'arā Bahār, Aref Qazvini, Farokhi Yazdi and Mirzadeh Eshghi have played a significant role in producing the myth of the savior and the character of rescuer by using the possibilities and capacities provided by the language of poetry. Bahar mentions the savior models present in ancient Iran, such as Cyrus, Kaveh, etc., and Aref Qazvini, Farokhi Yazdi, and Mirzadeh Eshghi also adhere to Iranian savior myths in accordance with such a model. On the other hand, such a theme can be seen in the fiction and prose works of that period as well as historical novels and plays, and in the final analysis of this homogenous collection, they form a discourse that is generally aligned with the phenomenon of Reza Khan and his desired order. In other words, they have made the ground favorable and smooth for the emergence of his speech. Another constructive field for the emergence of authoritarianism of that period, according to the results obtained, is the category of nationalism, which was re-read in the light of Ernst Cassirer's views. Along with other factors of the rise of nationalism and the necessity and reasons for the formation of this idea, the nationalism in Iranian culture in general and in Persian literature in particular - according to the description and analysis of the selected works in this article - can be seen as a result of the prevailing mythic insight that in the conditions an exceptional and critical age emerges.

References

- Abrahamian, Yerevan (2016). Iran between two revolutions: from the constitution to the Islamic revolution; Translated by Kazem Firouzmand, Hassan Shamsavari, Mohsen Madirshanehchi, Tehran: Markaz.
- (2010). History of modern Iran; Translated by Mohammad Ebrahim Fattahi, Tehran: Ney.
- Agamben, Giorgio (2015). exceptional situation; Translated by Pooya Imani, Tehran: Ney.
- Ahmadi, Ali; Aryan, Azita; Sharif, Negar (2019). "Revealing Criticism of Chashm-Cherani by Shmael Reed: Ideological or Liberating Role of Literature" Criticism of foreign language and literature; Number 24, pp. 39-61.
- Akhundzadeh, Mirza Fateh Ali (1972). Articles; Collected by Baqer Momeni, Tehran: Ava.

- Ali Madadi, Mona (20201). "Political theory of enlightened tyranny in post-constitutional literature (from 1285 A.H. to 1310 A.H.)"; Interdisciplinary literary researches.
- Alizadeh Birjandi, Zahra (2011). Nasserite government and new discourses; Tehran: Hirmand Publishing House.
- Althusser, Louis (2016). Ideology and ideological structures of the government; Translated by Roozbeh Sadrara, Tehran: Cheshme.
- Aref Qazvini, Abulqasem (2002). Diwan Aref Qazvini; Tehran: Negah.
- Azhand, Yaqoob (1994). Playwriting in Iran; Tehran: Ney Publishing.
- Bahar, Mehrdad (2016). From myth to history; Fifth edition, Tehran: Cheshmeh.
- Bahar, Mohammad Taghi (2008). Diwan Malek osh-Sho'arā Bahār, Tehran: Negah.
- Bahmanyar, Hossein (2012). "Kaveh newspaper and the possibility of revitalization of Iran", Irannameh, numbers 81-82.
- Balay, Christophe (1998). The emergence of the Persian novel; Translated by Mahvash Qoumi; Nasreen Khattat, first chapter: Tehran: Moein Publications - French Iranian Studies Association.
- Barahani, Reza (1984). male history; Tehran: First edition.
- Bashiriyeh, Hossein (2003). "Political ideology and social identity in Iran" Irannameh; No. 83, pp. 271-284.
- Bechler, Jean (1991). What is ideology? A critique of Western ideologies; Translated by Ali Asadi, Tehran: Sahami Publishing Company.
- Bertens, Johannes Willem (2011). Basics of literary theory; Translated by Mohammadreza Abolqasemi, Tehran: Nasharah Mahi.
- Bigdelo, Reza (2001). Archaism in Iran's contemporary history; Tehran: Nahr-e-Markaz.
- Cassirer, Ernst (1999). Philosophy of symbolic forms: mythological thought; Translated by Yadullah Moqen, Tehran: Hermes.
- (1999). language and Myth; Translated by Mohsen Thalasi, Tehran: Morvarid.
- (2004). Enlightenment philosophy; Translated by Yadullah Moqen, Tehran: Nilufar.
- (2014). The myth of the state; Translated by Yadullah Moqen, Tehran: Hermes.
- Eagleton, Terry (2013). Marxism and literary criticism; Translated by Akbar Masoum Beigi, Mashhad: Butimar.
- Ershad, Mohammad Reza (2003). The scope of the myth; Tehran: Hermes.
- Farahani, Hassan (2006). Daily history of Iran's contemporary history; Tehran: Institute of Political Studies and Research.
- Farrokhi Yazdi, Mohammad (2018). A collection of poems by Farrokhi Yazdi, edited by Mehdi Okhovvat; Mohammad Ali Sepanlo, Tehran: Negah.
- Fasaei, Jafar; Khogaste, Faramars; Mohammadi, Rasoul (2019). "Analysis of the ideological reflection of the historical conflict between the state and

- the nation in the short stories of Mahmoud Dolatabadi*" literary studies; No. 67, pp. 83-109.
- Foren, John (2013). Fragile resistance: the history of Iran's social developments from 1500 AD corresponding to 879 AD until the revolution; Translated by Ahmad Tadayyon, Tehran: Rasa Publishing House.
- Gellner, Ernest (1998). Nationalism; Translated by Mohammad Ali Taqavi, Tehran: Markaz.
- Gholam Mohammad (2013). Historical novel: course and criticism and analysis of Persian historical novels from 1284 to 1332; Tehran: Cheshmeh.
- Heydari, Arash (2015). "Genealogy of Iranian tyranny from the perspective of cultural history (from the beginning of the Nasrid era to the rise of Reza Shah)"; Doctoral dissertation of Allameh Tabatabai University, Tehran.
- Islami Nodushan, Mohammad Ali (1995). Jahanbin Cup; Tehran: Jami.
- Javidshad, Mehdi; Hadaïq, Behi (2017). "Gilemard of Bozorg Alavi: against ideology or an ideological tool" literary criticism; No. 43, pp. 39-61.
- Katouzian, (1998). "Autocratic government: a comparative theory about the government, politics and society of Iran", nine articles in the historical sociology of Iran: oil and economic development; Tehran: Nashre Markaz.
- , Mohammad Ali Hodayun (1993). "tyranny, rule of law, dictatorship, democracy and human rights" in tyranny, democracy and national movement in Iran; Tehran: Nashre Markaz.
- ,(1998). "Water-scarce and scattered society: the pattern of long-term socio-economic transformation in Iran", nine articles in historical sociology of Iran: oil and economic development; Tehran: Nashre Markaz.
- Lambton, NKS (2000). "Government theory in Iran", Giweh publication, translated by Changiz Pahlavan, number 81-82.
- Mesbahipour Iranian, Jamshid (1979). Social reality and the world of fiction, Tehran: Amirkabir.
- Mir Abdini, Hassan (2008). One hundred years of story writing; Tehran: Cheshmeh.
- Moshir Salimi, Ali Akbar (1978). Illustrated overviews of Mirzadeh Eshghi; Tehran: Sepehr printing house.
- Natiq, Homa (2010). From us that is upon us; Tehran: Nashare Agah.
- Parsinejad, Iraj (2001). Iranian enlighteners and literary criticism; Tehran: Sokhan.
- Piran, Parvez (2014). "Strategy Theory and Territorial Politics of Iranian Society", Andishe Iranshahr, No. 6.
- Ravandi, Morteza (1995). social history of Iran; Volume 8, Tehran: Negah.
- Segal, Robert Alan (2018). Myth; Translated by Ahmadreza Taqa, Tehran: Neshre Mahi.
- Tavakoli Targhi, Mohammad (2013). Native modernity and rethinking history; Tehran: Tarikh Iran Publishing House.